The Public And The Streamers

E3 and Comic Con are international and inspirational events. They provide a platform and showcase for brilliant writers, artists, studios and product releases. These events are held in June and July. That makes the summer full of wonder. They have big, popular titles that all media outlets are reporting, but there are also other aspects to consider.

The events are so spectacular that every year there are more diverse types of people that are attracted to the creativity and become part of the festivities. The largest increase is actors and producers. The movies, and television especially.

What is surprising this year at E3; is that out of the more than 68,000 professionals and industry people attending, 1500 wee public tickets -- for the first time in 23 events.

In attendance were the hardware manufacturers, software developers, retailers, plus products, websites and video games.

The newest group to have an impact are Streamers. That is a breakthrough for Indys with live streaming, trailers and videos.

All of this is encouraging the next generation of Techs; but a word of caution to avoid APK hacks, mods and cheats -- who don't pay licensing and taxes. Stay legal & safe
